SOLINET SELECTED TO OFFER TRAINING ON PTFS' ARCHIVALWARE™ SOFTWARE

ATLANTA – November 6, 2008 – SOLINET has partnered with Progressive Technology Federal Systems (PTFS) to offer training on their ArchivalWare™ software.

A web-based, full-text search and retrieval system for digital libraries, ArchivalWare™ allows organizations to store, access, and manage digital archive collections within one system. Through this new partnership agreement, SOLINET will be developing a Training Track of Live Online classes, scheduled to begin this winter.

“We are proud to be working with SOLINET and their membership. Our library science capabilities along with our content management products and services will enable us to deliver a lot of value to SOLINET and member libraries,” said Dan Quinn, Vice President for PTFS, Inc.

While most digital library systems let you perform a variety of Boolean and field searching, ArchivalWare™ takes it a little further, and delivers the information needed with pinpoint accuracy. Searchable formats include digital documents, books, news clippings, photographs, video and audio collections and other electronically published material. It also allows users to create a hierarchical, folder-based way of browsing the same documents.

“Recognized for its leadership in educational programs, and for helping libraries maximize their capabilities, SOLINET is thrilled to partner with Progressive Technology Federal Systems and help our members store, search, retrieve, browse and manage digital archive collections all from one system,” said Heather Dray, Educational Services Manager.
